

Of Tea, Bengali and Sugar

How ABP added a new recipe to the Tea menu of the Bengalis

The Chinese may have discovered, the Englishmen made it a habit but a Bengali's passion about tea is unparalleled

A Bengali's quintessential adda* would be incomplete without a storm in the earthen tea cups served by the neighbourhood Tea stall

*rendezvous

‘Chaayer Dokaan’

Kolkata, the capital of the Indian state of West Bengal is dotted with numerous ‘chaayer dokaan’ or the neighbourhood tea stalls where the citizens deliberate over everything from rising prices, to the crisis in national politics

‘Chaayer Dokaan’

These stalls often range from modest shacks to slightly bigger permanent shops which offer steaming hot cups of tea to customers through out the day

Tea is cooked not brewed

There are 3 types of Tea that a neighbourhood Tea stall serves:

- Tea with milk and sugar
- Tea without milk and sugar
- Tea with milk and no sugar

However, a change in the Tea consumption pattern is evident

Sugar is the new Tobacco

- Tea without milk and sugar
- Tea with milk and no sugar

Sugar is the new Tobacco

Thanks to the consistent promotion by WHO to reduce sugar intake among adults and children, Bengalis have now started to consciously avoid having sugar in their Tea

And that's a compromise!

The deliciously sweet tea laced with Indian spices suddenly lost its sheen. The numerous rendezvous of the Bengalis have suddenly become dull and gloomy!

Our advertiser's problem was not very different

Sugarfree Natura is the largest selling sugar substitute and is considered generic to the category with over 97% market share.

Our advertiser's problem was not very different

However in Bengal, they were plagued with low penetration numbers resulting in single digit secondary growth primarily due to inadequate new consumer acquisition.

Our advertiser's problem was not very different

In short, no body was trying them out since most of their audience had shifted to sugarless tea

ABP

Sugarfree approached Anandabazar Patrika* – the largest read Bengali daily

*Anandabazar Patrika is the largest Bengali newspaper with a total readership of more than 1.25 Lac readers

At ABP, we re-articulated the problem statements

Problem statement - 1

The Bengali Tea consumers were opting to go sugarless rather than trying a sugar substitute

Problem statement - 2

The Bengali Tea consumers were reluctantly trying to develop a taste for tea that wasn't sweet

Problem statement - 3

Consumer acquisition for the brand was suffering since Sugarfree was viewed as a means of treatment for the Diabetics amongst the TG

Our approach to the problems

We conducted a study that indicated Sugarfree as the highest recalled (close to 82%) brand amongst sugar substitutes

Our approach to the problems

We realised that we needed to position Sugarfree as a preventive tool rather than a curative one; in short we needed to convert sugarless tea drinkers into sweet tea drinkers to acquire new consumers

Drop the sugar, stay with the Tea

We activated a new campaign for Sugarfree. We called it 'cha chaluk chini noy' meaning 'drop the sugar, stay with the Tea'

SUGAR IS THE NEW TOBAC

Satiate your sweet tooth without worrying about calories; Nutritionist Fiona Nafis offers healthier alternatives to sugar.

Can sugar be an addictive as opium? Well, the answer is yes, according to some researchers. Sugar is being used as the new tobacco so much so, that some researchers even think it to be regarded like tobacco and alcohol. They argue that the ill-effects of high sugar intake is not just confined to increasing energy intake leading to obesity. It contributes to 15 million deaths worldwide each year, from diseases like diabetes, heart disease and cancer. Moreover, it's toxic to the body, increases blood pressure, damages the liver and impairs immune system.

It is recommended that women have no more than six teaspoons of sugar a day, and men stick to five teaspoons. It's argued that since Indians have a greater predisposition towards sugar metabolism and diabetes, we should stick to no more than five teaspoons of sugar per day. Given that there's a lot of sugar in our thought food items, we should monitor the amount of added sugar in things like tea and coffee. Perfumes for women have a warning but for some of us, it provides the necessary push for addictive tendencies. If you find yourself frequently craving for a sugar fix, you need to find an alternative to satisfy your cravings.

To add sweetness to your food, there are great alternatives available in the form of "Sugar Alternatives". They are sweeteners, which is a food additive, which mimics the effect of sugar on taste. Therefore, they are called sugar substitutes. They typically provide very little to no calories. The sweetener system that such product gives often may be especially helpful in the management of weight goals or diabetes melitus. It should not be considered as an alternative, just for diabetes. Anyone who wants to lead a healthy life, one concerned with the most commonly used sugar substitutes are aspartame, sucralose and stevia.

Stevia is a plant extract of sweetener (beta glycoside) it is 400 times sweeter than sugar. It provides zero calories. It has a taste very similar to that of sugar. It has a very, very, very little to no heat stable properties. It can be used as a replacement for sugar in cooking and baking or used instead of sugar in recipes. It is safe for both men and women. Daily intake (ADR) of one of the leading brands in the sugar substitute category is 30 mg/day a day which translates to maximum equivalent of 58 teaspoons of sugar, which is much higher than the average consumption of men.

Aspartame has been found to be safe for human consumption. It is one of the most rigorously tested food ingredients and is so safe that even pregnant women and children can use it. ADR of one of the leading brands in the sugar substitute category is 150 mg/day a day which is again much higher than the average consumption of 58 a person.

Stevia is a substitute of choice for people who have a preference for organic and natural stuff. It is obtained from the leaves of stevia plant, which are very sweet and have become a GDS under the FDA. However, a frequent public concern is expressed over many "artificial" food additives, including sugar substitutes. There is no sound scientific evidence to incriminate any of the artificial sweeteners approved for use to cause any health problems. Numerous research studies confirm that artificial sweeteners are generally safe. In fact, studies, even for pregnant women and children.

You should be happy to learn that they are safe and approved by the WHO and USDA (US Food and Drug Administration). USDA has given the label "Generally Recognized as Safe" (GRAS), to the artificial sweeteners.

Moreover, the FDA has also established Acceptable Daily Intake (ADI) levels for the approved sugar substitutes. The ADI is "the maximum amount of food additive that can be safely consumed on a daily basis over a person's lifetime without any adverse effects". The bottom line is that there is a fair amount of evidence to confirm the safety of sweeteners at levels consumed within the Acceptable Daily Intake level. Moreover, it has been estimated that the daily intake of sugar substitutes is generally far below their ADI's and a rare probability would exceed the ADI.

IT'S NOT HARMFUL YET! all they do is, satiate your sweet tooth and happiness to your lives. They can provide the sweetness of sugar without the calories. Replace sugar with sugar substitutes in your everyday life. They have low or no calories, compared with about 20 calories in 1 teaspoon (4.5 grams) of sugar. It can help you reduce 1000 calories in one week, which can make you lose up to 2.5 a year, that's a huge. Big Change! If getting healthier and fitness is a goal for you, take the small yet significant step of replacing all sugar with sugar substitutes in your everyday life. Cha CholuK Chini NoY.

Adequacy of sugar (SD) is equivalent to 28 teaspoons. This product has 2 teaspoons of sugar and 40 calories. And there are completely safe. So, ahead, still get the sweetness and happiness to your life.
